How to use this list

Every idea here is something a business will pay for. Skip the ones that bore you, and pick one you can describe to a stranger in a sentence.

1

Pick one

Choose an idea that matches a skill you have or an industry you know. Depth beats breadth.

2

Build a sample

Make one real example (a demo bot, a finished video, a sample report) before you pitch anyone.

3

Show it to five buyers

Message the "who pays" people listed on each idea and offer a small paid pilot.

These are business ideas, not guarantees. Results depend on your skills, your market, your pricing, and how well you sell. Check the rules for your industry and country before you start, and get written consent before cloning anyone's voice or likeness. This list leaves out areas that need licenses or carry heavy legal risk, such as legal advice, medical or mental-health advice, and trading.
